On The Grounds

PARSONII JUNIPER (JUNIPERUS DAURICA)

Parson's juniper is a ground hugging evergreen conifer with flat, feathery branches. Young leaves are like tiny scales that are held closely against the twigs while older leaves are prickly needles. The foliage is bluish-green and has a soft texture. Single plantings grow in a domelike mound. Native to central Asia, and possibly Japan, Parson's juniper is drought and salt tolerant. Parson's juniper requires full sun for densest growth.
