PLANT OF THE MONTH – DWARF CONFEDERATE JASMINE (TRACHELOSPERMUM JASMINOIDES)

Confederate Jasmine grows as a neat tangle of slender wiry stems covered with thick glossy evergreen leaves that are long, oval shaped, and pointed at both ends. During April and May the plant goes two-tone as it flushes light green with new growth and tiny white blossoms appear. Pest-free, relatively easy to maintain, drought resistant and heavenly fragrant, Confederate Jasmine is probably the South's favorite flowering vine. It makes a good groundcover for large areas where it will scramble all over itself and may be sheared to maintain a consistent height.

UPDATES FROM THE RANCH

Enhancements continue as do the rainy days. This coming week, workers will continue preparing the landscape beds in the medians on McIntosh Road, south of Central Sarasota Parkway. Once complete, this will be followed immediately by the installation of irrigation. All this is done in preparation for the spectacular color burst of serpentine plantings of Helen Johnson Bougainvillea within areas of Cabbage Palms. Palms will be replaced between the beds as needed to maintain a balanced and appealing appearance as we round the curves of McIntosh Road. Please be mindful of the workers as the skies alternate from scorching sun to soaking rain and back.
